AMERICAN FORCES NOW IN COMPLETE CONTROL AT VERA CRUZ; FEARS EXPRESSED FOR THE SAFETY OF YANKEES IN MEXICO CITY.

AMERICANS IN POSSESSION OF SEAPORT AFTER SHELLING THE CITY; NO WORD FROM CAPITAL

Consul Canada Wires White House That Town has Capitulated.

HUERTA FORCES DEALT A BLOW

Their Loss in Fighting Estimated at 150 Killed and Wounded; Corrected List of Dead and Wounded Americans in Vera Cruz; Non-Combatants Safe.

BULLETIN. WASHINGTON, April 22.—The White House gave out the following statement:

"Reports received from Consul General Vera Cruz, Lieut. Col. J. C. Herwick, indicated that the American forces are now in complete possession of the city, thus apparently there had been no fatalities among Americans and for days non-combatants and that firing ceased except for occasional picket shots."

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The American forces commenced an advance to the entire city of Vera Cruz at 3 o'clock under the guns of the war vessels, according to a report from Consul Canada, received at the State Department at 10 o'clock.

Consul Canada reported that 150 Mexicans were killed and wounded yesterday.

Consul Canada's latest dispatch, which was filed at Vera Cruz early today and given out at 11 A. M., says:

"Firing commenced at daybreak. Ships now shelling southern part of the city. Large force landed before daylight. Copies of proclamation issued by Rear Admiral Fletcher requested at once the co-operation of the Mexican government in restoring order have been distributed, but have been unable, as yet, to get in communication with these officials.

"Tampico's force of marines from Tampico are now ashore. Except the city will be quiet early in the morning. Estimated of Mexican killed and wounded approximately 150."

"Battleshops here, Florida, Utah, Arkansas, Vermont, New Hampshire, New Jersey, South Carolina, Transport Prairie and Collier Colonies; Transport Tropic with marines reported due. American forces advanced S. A. M. under guns of war vessels to take it."

To Rear Admiral Fletcher's proclamation to the city officials, he called upon them in the name of the United States to cooperate with him in restoring order. He said they could rely on their municipal government as before and that the United States merely would hold the customs house and patrol the city.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A corrected list of the Americans killed and wounded in the first fighting at Vera Cruz yesterday was cableled today by Admiral Fletcher. The list differs in important respects from the first press reports. It follows:

The Dead.

PRIVATE DALE H. HAGGERTY, Second regiment, Marine Corps.

Secretary Bryan Fears for Safety of Americans in Mexico City.

NO WORD FROM O'SHAUGNESSY

American Charge Has Not Communicated with State Department Since Monday; President Grieves Over Loss of Life; Congress Takes Action.

BULLETIN. WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mr. Bryan is worried about Charge O'Shaughnessy and has cabled him to report about conditions in Mexico City. The Secretary was sure, however, that nothing had happened to O'Shaughnessy, other than his being in Mexico City would have informed the United States through their home government.

Wireless are reported cut from Mexico City to Vera Cruz which would account for the lack of information. Secretary Bryan announced this afternoon he had not heard from O'Shaughnessy since Monday.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—American operations in Mexico at Vera Cruz took on renewed aspects of war today when Rear Admiral Badger landed more marines from the Atlantic fleet and the United States forces proceeded to take the entire city. While the leaders of the President's forces being carried out to the sea, it was made apparent in conference at the White House that the United States will "light" at Vera Cruz and that no further steps of pacification will be taken at this time.

For the present, it was declared on high authority, the forces at Vera Cruz would hold the city to convince Mexico that the government's policies and that no more would be taken unless there are real ramifications.

"Our minister rolls contain 60 names and 48 more men are needed to bring us to the number required for active duty on the firing line. This will secure 250 recruits in a day and am only holding off pending the arrival of reinforcements from Baltimore," Com-

"We would need about six hours to assemble, pack and board a train. This period would be required if we were ordered to take everything with us. In case of emergency this limit would be about three hours."

No orders, it was stated, have been sent to the American officers with reference to landing at Tampico, the only orders being sent there referring to direction of ships at Vera Cruz. No advancement further than Vera Cruz on the part of the United States forces is planned, it was said, and the part of Huerta's forces that follow should precipitate further trouble and make aggressive action necessary.

Despite the purpose of the administration to confine the operations to Vera Cruz, the situation took on an ominous aspect which indicated that more serious consequences cannot be averted. Though no officials announced it, it was generally understood that the American charge had been directed to ask for his passport and that the American charge at Mexico City, Mr. O'Shaughnessy, had been asked to leave. With this prospective severing of diplomatic negotiations, together with reports of aroused feeling among the Mexicans, the feeling is here that they may not resort to any active attack from Mexico's Federals. Everything is in readiness for actual warfare if it must come.

"The appointment is subject to council of prov'l at its meeting on Friday night.

Mercer Declares He Don't Want to Serve Term in Workhouse.

Threats of suicide were made today by John Mercer, 34, convict, just before he was taken back to the Allegheny county workhouse to finish a three-year term for robbery. Mercer left for the prison this afternoon in custody of Officer James Charlton who was picked up yesterday by Chief of Police Bowers. He escaped from the workhouse Sunday.

"I am not guilty and I shall not serve my term," Mercer said as he was being taken from the cell house to Chief Bowers' office. "I'll make another getaway or kill myself. I am the 'full guy' and I do not want to let 'em put something more over on me."

Officer Charlton arrived at police headquarters and immediately paid the $50 reward offered for Mercer to Bowers. The money will have to be turned over to the county when the session was resumed. He urged that there be no conference.

The House convened at 10 o'clock. Majority Leader Underwood announced that the Senate justification resolution was not taken up, and a ten-minute recess was granted.

Representative Blood, chairman of the House foreign affairs committee, moved that the House concur in the Senate justification resolution when the session was resumed. He urged that there be no conference.

The Navy Department is arranging to bring to the United States the bodies of sailors or marines killed at Vera Cruz and other forward them to relatives or make that interment in the National Cemetery as the families desire. All expenses of transportation will be borne by the United States.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—When the House convened at 10 o'clock, Majority Leader Underwood announced that the Senate justification resolution in the use of armed forces in Mexico. There was no debate and the roll vote was almost unanimous.

With the roll call adjourned until noon to allow time for the announcement of the resolution. It was signed at 12:05 and President Wilson affixed his signature at 2:05 o'clock.

Majority Leader Underwood announced today that he did not expect the House to act on any bills appropriating money for war purposes caused by the resignation of Prof. Clifford J. Scott.

COMPANY D READY FOR CALL TO ARMS; EXPECTING ORDERS

Captain Herwick Says Soldiers Could Entrain in Six Hours.

VOLUNTEERS ARE TURNED DOWN

Twenty-four Recruits Apply at the Army to be Enlisted but None Will Be Accepted Until Orders are Issued from Harrisburg; Boys Ready to Go.

Company D would only need six hours' notice to go to the front, according to Captain J. C. Herwick. If that time the company would be trained properly for actual service, he declared. As yet no orders have been received concerning the probability of being called out, but the others of the company are holding themselves in readiness for a call.

The war strength of infantry companies is 198 and Captain Herwick has received scores of applications for enrollment during the past few days. Twenty-four applicants had evaded recruitment and were ready to go. Recruits are not accepted at this time as orders have not arrived from the adjutant general's office. These will be sent from Harrisburg to regimental commanders and then handed to officers in charge of companies.

"We are prepared to leave for Mexico on a moment's notice," Captain Herwick said. "I believe we will get orders in time." He said the men are now fit for duty as recruits have gone far enough so that it will be necessary to use troops to bring Huerta to his senses.

"Our muster rolls contain 60 names and 48 more men are needed to bring us to the number required for active duty on the firing line. This will secure 250 recruits in a day and am only holding off pending the arrival of reinforcements from Baltimore," Com-

YOUNG WOMAN A SUICIDE; SHOOTS HERSELF IN HEAD

Failure of Husband to Provide a Home Believed Cause of Mount Pleasant Tragedy.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 22.—Mrs. Blanche Miller, 24, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Snyder of this place, shot and killed herself at her parents' home shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She used a revolver and shot herself through the head. The cause of her act is not known, although there is a theory that she committed suicide because her husband wrote her to stay with the Synders as they could provide a better home for her. A letter said to contain the statement is declared to have been found in her room.

NO MORE RUNNING SORES

Graham & Co., Connellsville, and S. A. Lowe & Co., Scottdale, sell an Ointment Called San Cura.

This is a Positive Remedy.

It matters not how old, persistent or poisonous the sore is. San Cura contains the powerful antiseptic, will draw out the poison and promptly heal the sore.

So sure of this are the owners the Thompson Medical Co., that they have authorized Graham & Company, Connellsville, and S. A. Lowe Company, Connellsville, to return the purchase price of San Cura ointment doesn't do all this paper says it will do. No refund offer ever made.

D. R. Button, Titusville, Pa., says:

"My arm was singed with twenty-four burning sores and swollen to twice its natural size. San Cura ointment relieved the pain, drew out the poison and healed the arm in one month. If you are suffering from a sore, apply San Cura and get well."

TELLS ABOUT TREES

Expert Shows How to Plant and Nurture Them.

A fair-sized audience attended the lecture given by Herbert Hommonay, the city horticultural expert, on the high school assembly room last night on "Trees and Tree Planting." The "Story" he gave a talk that was full of valuable information and illustrated with beautiful and instructive lantern slides.

Mr. Hommonay has expressed his willingness to give suggestions as to trees to plant, what vines to set out and where to set them out, and give Connellsville people a wide knowledge as to the horticultural garden, but so far few have availed themselves of his offer. He is willing to stay another week and see that trees are set out properly, if any interest in all that is manifested in the proposition.

PATRON'S DAY DISPLAYS

Teachers Will Exhibit School Children Work on Friday.

Teachers in the various schools are invited to their best efforts to have attractive displays in their rooms on Friday, which is the annual Patron's Day. Invitations have been sent out to every parent and it is expected that the opportunity to view the day's work will be well utilized.

For a night's lodging in a dormitory or a bed, the cost is $1.00.

For a night's lodging in a dormitory or a bed, the cost is $1.00.

Principals of the schools will exhibit work for several years back, designed to show by comparison what progress is being made from year to year. Some of the exhibits are really remarkable, the best examples having been on display in the high school two weeks ago.

Man Applying for Lodging Arrested for Going Armed.

Applying for a night's lodging in a police court last night Charles Bonney, 22, of Pittsburg, was fined up to be arrested by Desk Sergeant Harry Miller. As he raised his hands to show that he had no weapon, he hit a revolver dropped through his trousers.

The gun was fully loaded and a quantity of cartridges were also found on him.

Bonney was locked up on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and sentenced to serve 48 hours by the mayor this morning. An information will also be sworn out against him before an alderman.

HURT IN MINES.

Andy Brant, injured at Star Junction, brought to Hospital.

Andy Brant, 35 years old, employed in the mines of the Washington Coal & Coke Company at Star Junction was admitted to the Umatilla State Hospital this morning for treatment of injuries suffered when he was run down by a car in the mines.

Herminia Young, 18 years old of Palm Marlin, underwent a tonsil operation this morning.

Cured of Chronic Constitution. "For twenty-one years I suffered with chronic constitution," says C. W. Robinson, of Cordova St. in May, and "I have now a strong, healthy body, resulting in a good digestion, plus and unusually long life." He seemed a burden to me. Two famous physicians and one specialist in all their dramatic skill failed to cure him. I told him I could. I gave Chamberlain's Tablets, which I did, and am pleased to say two bottles of them cured me. I am glad to add that he is now in full health.

STOP CATARRH!

STOP CATARRH!—Lou Brattie, Jr.

I now properly treated this disease often leads to a serious if not fatal ailment. It is needless to allow catarrh to ruin your health—use Byomeel—it is certainly effective relief for catarrh.

It is the direct-to-the-spot treatment.

You breathe it—no stomach distress.

No household should be without Byomeel. It gives quiet and lasting benefits in cases of catarrh but it is one of the safest and most pleasant treatments for head colds, sniffles or cough of children.

Byomeel is a combination of anti-septic oils—you breathe it—using a small inhaler. The air laden with health-restoring Byomeel soothes the nostrils and vitalizes the sore, raw and inflamed membranes of the nose. It is the only remedy that brings a general or specific relief.

Do not be without Byomeel another day. Druggists everywhere sell it at the complete outfit—$1.00 size, containing the inhaler and bottle of oil.

GRAY HAIR? NO.

LOOK YOUNG, LADIES

Do as the French people do use sage, properly steeped and mixed with propolis compounded, speedily and easily restore gray hair to its natural color.

For the benefit of their customers accommodating druggists are keeping on hand a supply of Sage and Quinine, scientifically compounded, speedily and easily restore gray hair to its natural color.

This mixture of Sage and Quinine is known among the better class of druggists as Dr. May's Cream of Sage and Quinine, and it has become so popular during the last few months that there is an unusually large demand for it.

It is such a simple mixture that druggists can afford to sell it for about 25¢ for a large bottle, and being a perfect formula, they can guarantee it to restore gray hair to its natural color. Call the druggist to whom you belong and tell him to get the Dr. May's Cream of Sage and Quinine.

A. A. Clarke with usual enterprise has a large supply of this old French recipe on hand. Ady.

WAH!

The war with Mexico was inevitable. It has come.

It is vital to recall the fact that this nation has had other and better reasons for calling Mexico to account, and has been content to pursue a policy of "watchful waiting." It is sufficient to the day that Old Glory has been flaunted and the American nation publicly and openly defied.

The war with Mexico will end the Civil War there. The invasion of Mexico will result in the warring Mexican factions. It is safe to say that to American troops on Mexican soil every Mexican will be an enemy.

While the war with America will doubtless reunite Mexico, it will be at terrible cost, with no guarantee of long continuance after the causes which made it have ceased, assuming that a reasonable settlement of the present difficulties will be arrived at in due season and the duty of restoring order in Mexico will devolve again upon Mexicans.

It is possible, however, that the confines of the country may be brought within the limited capacity of the Mexican for governing himself.

In the meantime, the first duty of America is to punish the de facto Mexican government for a long series of insults and outrages perpetrated upon the American people.

CLEAN-UP DAY.

To clean up a filthy city is a herculean undertaking for one man, or even a single flock of "white wings," but for a whole cityful of people it is with systematic endeavor a comparatively easy task.

Connellsville will put forth a united effort in this direction tomorrow, and every person, large and small, who is able to assist set on the job. Cleanliness is next to godliness, and it is an old proverb, and modern science has taught us that it is undoubtedly next to health and bodily comfort. Better a few hours active work battling with filth than days of bed-ridden pain battling with disease and death.

Then, too, there is the city beautiful side. Some people cannot see the use of trees and flowers, of neat walks and trim lawns, but the health and surroundings that please the eye. They fail to note any utility in such things, and figure them as poor investments.

We have but one life to live, and at best this life is not so very long. Common sense should teach us that we will enjoy it more and live it longer amid pleasant environment. Our surroundings are not always what we would like to have them, but they are often capable of great improvement at our own hands.

Let everybody get busy tomorrow for clean premises and better living.

PLAYGROUNDS.

The children's playground committee report that the King site can be leased on favorable terms, and the project begins to assume definite shape.

It will be remembered, however, that the proposition had attained that stage only in 1911, and was not adopted, and that it failed of consummation largely because the borough authorities avowed no interest in it when it was presented by the Chamber of Commerce. The two bodies are more in harmony now, and we hope for better results.

The playground project will require the raising of some money for the improvements. A part of this should come from your voluntary contributions, and shall agree to maintain the grounds and police them; it will be doing its fair share and perhaps all the authorities feel that they can do just now.

The playground project should be pushed while it seems to be popular.

The Connellsville postoffice reports having handled five tons of parcel post matter in three days, or an average of ten tons a month. It is to be wondered if the express companies are going out of business, and the railroads are protecting against being obliged to haul their business, now absorbed by the postal department, without additional compensation from the government. The parcel post service is cheap and convenient, but it's hard on the carriers, common and uncommon.

It will be 25 for Connellsville.

The man who prevented a wreck while traveling over the Somerset &amp; Cambria branch of the Baltimore &amp; Ohio on a tie the pass may not get any other kind of a pass, but he will doubtless be rewarded in such manner as will enable him to ride occasionally. In the meantime, the Baltimore &amp; Ohio railroad management cannot consistently object to trespassers of this character.

Liquor licenses came higher in Connellsville. The landlords will have to put more wind in the sails, and more glaze in the bottom of the tumbler, to make both ends meet.

The Fayette county prisoner who escaped from the state prison and came back to Connellsville to get a job in the glass factory was perhaps worthy of being paroled. When a man wants to work some saving grace still abides for him.

Even Dan Cupid reports business dull.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the power of the Public Service Commission to regulate water rates. Under the circumstances there is really no hurry to buy the Connellsville plant.

Counselor Higgins was nominated to the Democratic candidate for State

Senate from Fayette county by three members of the party. Senator Spangler, with the consent of the Linns and the Lamb in the persons of Horatio Sparks Dunham and George Foster Sterling, not to mention the cordial approval of Judge Christy; yet the organ of the Democratic party have the supreme effort to talk about Republicanism.

The dispute over one of Connellsville's private alleys didn't make it public.

The Uniforn New Standard strikes that Senator Crow "can't shift the burden of his responsibility" in the matter of the Workmen's Compensation bill. He does not desire to do so, and he has not attempted to do so; but he is determined that some of the proprietors of The New Standard shall not dodge their responsibility in the same behalf.

The Connellsville News refers to the Senator Chairman, but what shall we say of the President-candidate?

The Watchful Walter has become an easier warrior.

The daredevil organists are always telling us what wonderful things they are doing for us. With the Republican organists it's different. Every day is some joke as it seems.

The county has kids for adoption.

"Perhaps the transportation of troops will give the railroad a chance to put a few more men back to work," says the Connellsville News. Perhaps this is not such a joke as it seems.

President Hughes's newspaper has promised Candidate Hughes the Bibb Criss vote of Connellsville. By what authority and for what reason, we wonder.

"Old Stone came down on Hill Creek like a bolt of slate," says the Uniontown Herald; and badly broken stone.

The Uniontown Standard wants to know if The Courier endorses the thing the Uniontown Herald said about Senator Crow a few years ago. Certainly not. That was when The Herald was under sinister editorial influences.

President Wilson insists upon lighting the short-haired Illinois plateau. Woodrow, it wouldn't do, but John and Bruce Sterling. Bruce admits that it is a great blight.

The Pennsylvania trucks through Connellsville are evidently not popular bways during the night, yet they seem to be traveled too much for personal safety.

It is almost as dangerous to be Mayor of New York as it is to be President of Mexico.

The time for taking out borough licenses is getting short.

The Courier will take nothing back but it has said about Counselor Higgins but candor compels the statement that the half has not been told about Candidate Higgins.

SCOTTDALE CLUB FOR CHAUTAUQUA IS ORGANIZED

It Will Boost for the Coming Attraction in Next July.

FIRST MEETING WAS LAST NIGHT

M. M. Teom Says That Cattle Feeding, a Money Making Proposition and Farm Earner Is Just Now Coming Into Its Own Somewhat; News Notes

Special to The Courier
SCOTTDALE April 22.—The first community interest meeting to be held in the new M. M. Teom building which was dedicated on Sunday evening for the organization of the Scottdale Belpath Bazaar Chautauqua boosters club when a number of those instrumental in securing the Chautauqua fast and elected officers. Mr. Webster, the representative of the bureau was present and after the election of W. H. Gieske as chairman of the meeting explained the workings of the Chautauqua which Scottdale will have for the first time this summer.
In the new building there is a large room 14x20 with a high ceiling, G. E. Kell, president U. V. Perry and M. L. Bassett vice presidents. L. E. Meltinger secretary Charles A. Colborn treasurer. The Chautauqua will be held here the representatives promising during the week beginning July 12, and this will be only the second date of the particular group's appearance, however, and so forth. The first Chautauqua for them will be at Keeneport. There will be entertainments in the morning afternoon and evening in a tent capable holding from 1,000 to 2,000 people.

CATTLE FEEDING

Three two year old cattle weighing 1,700 pounds raised by Scott in Miller's fenced Mills were bought by M. L. Bassett, L. E. Meltinger and myself says that there is beginning to be a return to cattle breeding in this part of the country. I am getting the best cattle in years said Mr. Trout speaking on the subject. It seems that the farmers are getting back to the idea of not taking everything off the land. Cattle growing is the best thing to enrich the soil and there is more in it to grow. I do not see why more farmers do not turn to the breeding business. It is good money when the price is paid for meat was very much lower than now. Perhaps the reason is that many of the boys are leaving the farms to go into trades and 1700 is one of the biggest m<sup>t</sup> taken a young fellow can make. The older people do not care to raise stock. Many of them seem to be interested with what money they have and do not care to turn to the breeding business. The breeding business is the direction of a profit which can be made on the farm. One drawback in this direction is the fence and the fence cost a great deal. If the fence cost ten cents per mile if the fence cost ten cents per mile. The fence will be from 3 to 4 feet high. This assessment is $3 and there will be a lunch served.

NOTES

The Young Ladies Society is holding its annual meeting for a dance to be given at the Terre Haute Hall on Thursday April 23. The dance will be from 8 to 10 o'clock. The assessment is $3 and there will be a lunch served.

Twin Fighting Tops of Uncle Sam's Warships a Big Aid to Sea Fighters

IN THE CROWS' NESTS © BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

PROVIDENCE April 22.—The fighting tops or "crows' nests" of Uncle Sam's twin battleships are decided favorite points in active warfare. They contain machine guns and add plenty of room for 10 to 15 men in each. The illustration shows the iron mast and fighting tops of the battleship North Dakota as it sailed to Europe under a forced head of steam. A seaman can be seen mounting a machine gun in the forecastle.

Great Display In Liberal Arts.

Chief Hardee Invites Manufacturers of the United States to Participate As Exhibitors at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco In 1915.

THOMAS HARDEE, Chief of the Department of Liberal Arts for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, is addressing letters to the principal manufacturers of the United States in the various industries classified under his department, inviting their participation as exhibitors.

The Liberal Arts rank high in the Official Classification because they embrace the Applied Sciences, which indicate the result of man's education and culture, illustrate his tastes, and demonstrate his scientific attainment, inventive genius and artistic expression. They comprise fifteen groups, divided into 121 classes and cover the equipment, processes and products of these activities:

Type-Writing, Printing, Photography, Commercial and Technical Book Binding, Maps and Apparatus, For Geography, Cosmography and Topography, Manufacture of Paper, Photography, Instruments of Precision, Philosophical Apparatus, Coins and Medals, Medicine and Surgery, Chemical and Pharmaceutical Arts, Musical Instruments, Theatrical Appliances and Equipment, Electrical Methods of Communication, Civil and Military Engineering Models, Plans and Designs for Public Works, Architecture, Architectural Engineering.

In his invitation Chief Hardee is emphasizing the national character and international significance of the 1915 Exposition, as well as the splendid opportunity afforded the manufacturers for a comprehensive display of their products and processes, in which live, working exhibits would prove especially interesting and attractive.

He has also dwelt upon the fact that the exhibits at this Exposition must be SELECTIVE in character, because of the comparative limitation of space.

THEODORE HARDEE, CHIEF OF DEPARTMENT OF LIBERAL ARTS.

due to the world's more extended productivity and the wider participation than at previous exhibits. In view of this situation and as there is no charge for exhibit space, he has suggested the advisability of filing applications for space without further delay.

The rules of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition confine these applications from the various industries to MANUFACTURERS only, and he is seeking the active co-operation of the press of this country toward inducing thoroughly representative American displays in the Department of Liberal Arts. He aims to have the manufacturers suitably represented at this important celebration of the opening of the Panama Canal—an event that means the inauguration of a new and profitable avenue of commerce, the extent of which it is impossible to overestimate.

The Chief appeals to the patriotism of the manufacturers in helping to insure the success of our country's greatest celebration and believes that in doing so they will at the same time maintain the enviable position their great industries now hold in the commercial affairs of the world.

As far as possible, the Palace of Liberal Arts will be filled with working exhibits, showing processes as well as products illustrative of the skill and ingenuity of man. As in all other Departments exhibit space will be free in the Palace of Liberal Arts. Exhibitors are, in return, required to transport their exhibits to the Exposition, erect suitable booths for their installation and properly maintain them always throughout the nine and one-half months comprising the exposition period.

Already the applications for exhibit space have far exceeded the amount available in this department. This permits selection of only the most desirable exhibits, so manufacturers of unusually fine products need not hesitate about sending in applications for exhibit space which will receive the most careful consideration when the allotment of space is made. The preliminary allotment will probably be made this Spring. As the Exposition opens on Feb. 20, 1915 the time for preparation is comparatively short. It is highly advisable therefore to file applications without delay, as allotments will be made only from

REVOLUTION IN SCULPTURE.

Pittsburgh Professor Produces Perfect Likeness by Use of Camera.

Professor J. Hartmann Smith, head of the department of civil engineering, University of Pittsburgh, has made it possible to model a bust, statue and charcoal and in a few hours it is asserted that sculpture will be revolutionized.

He can reproduce a human feature in clay or other plastic material with photographic accuracy, using cameras to guide the fingers in modeling. And when he has made his bust he can employ color photography to make it an exact likeness of the original.

A lump of clay is placed on a pedestal in exactly the same position that was occupied by the subject's head. Two cameras are then focused on the lump of clay until the shadows of the lines in the record photograph and those in the screen almost coincide. The lines and figures on the screen in the right-hand camera show black on the lump.

of clay, while those from the left hand camera are white. When the cameras are in focus the operator builds up or scoops out the clay section by section until the black and white lines and figures are superimposed.

THE above photograph shows one of the lofty concrete walls of the huge Palace of Education at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915. The great height of this wall is evil by comparison with the tiny figures of men at the top of the dome when the palace is completed the walls will be sheathed by the embossed relief of the gigantic monoliths of granite of Corinthian architecture, behind which will be set great mural paintings and highly ornamental statuary. however many of the crepe wears require very little ironing and this is the most difficult part of the laundry work.

The majority of mothers solve the problem of color by arranging enough white dresses for wear on special occasions and, for every day, colored work.

Among the latter there is a great variety of new weaves as well as the staple gingham, chintz, lawn and percale. These latter are offered in such up-to-date colors and designs that even the most exacting will not hesitate to employ them. As for wear these old standbys cannot be surpassed.

Blue and white striped gingham was used for this very sensible school frock for a little maid. The collar and cuffs were of white linen. Two rows of white crochet buttons adorned the front of the bodice and a belt showing a bias arrangement of the stripes encircled the waist. A sturdy sunbonnet was adorned with a blue band was worn with the dress.

ORDER YOUR OWN WEATHER.

Sir Oliver Lodge Has Method For Controlling Rain and Shine

Soon we will be able to have any kind of weather we want. If we want fine weather all that is necessary is to send up positive electricity into the clouds and if rain is wanted negative electricity is discharged and shower will result.

Such is the suggestion made by Sir Oliver Lodge before the Institute of Electrical Engineers in London. The possibility of controlling the weather caused much interest among the engineers present.

MUSIC BORN OF SORROW.

There is a nation universally musical according to Henri Bidou critic and historian. If nation is musical, he says, it is because it has passed through so much tribulation that it has been driven to express its sorrow and anxiety in music. Bach's declamation is the culminating expression of suffering induced in Germany by the Thirty Years war fifty years before Bach's time.

People sing like cowards, he continues to keep up their spirits in bad moments and he finds that the real countries of music are nearly all from provinces exposed to external vicissitudes.

Ludwig Beethoven is exempt to a large extent from the ova-lonians in which poets "lament in suffering what they teach in song" because it is protected from invasion by the girdle of the sea. Music then he argues, is not an art of peace; it originates in strife and anxiety not in tranquillity and content.

"In India the little children babble at the age of five or six. We are not like you. With you if a full grown man or woman suddenly manages to write a few rimes the thing is deemed almost a miracle."

Too Much Cavities.

One afternoon an esteemed citizen went into a barber shop to have his braces repaired but no sooner had he taken a seat in one of the chairs than he dropped off into heavy slumber.

Apparently the shave artist was having his own troubles in manipulating the customer and after making several attempts he thoughtfully paused.

"Excuse me sir," said he, gently shaking the man in the chair, "but would you mind waking up? I can't shave you while you are asleep."

"Can't shave me while I'm asleep," exclaimed the victim with a wondering expression. "Who's not?"

became dark again. She laid her head upon the railing and gazed over the day's events. These were not at all satisfactory to her. Then her thoughts traveled many miles away. Six months of happiness, of romance, of play, and then misery and banishment.

"Nora, are you there?"

"Yes. Over here on the balcony. What were you doing down there?"

"Oh, Nora, I'm sorry I lost my temper. 'Tut Moly's begun to nag me lately, and I can't stand it. I went after that book. Did you throw some flowers out of the window?"

"Yes."

"A bunch of daisies?"

"Marguerites," she corrected.

"All the same to me. I picked up the bunch, and look at what I found inside."

He extended his palm, flitting it with the light of his pocket lamp. Nora's heart tightened. What she saw was a beautiful uncut emerald.

CHAPTER XL

A Comedy with Music.

The Harrigans occupied the suite in the east wing of the villa. This consisted of a large drawing room and two ample bedrooms, with window balconies and a private veranda in the rear, looking off toward the green of the pines and the metal-like titter of the copper beeches.

It was raining, fine, soft, burring Alpine rain, and a blue-gray monotone prevailed upon the face of the waters and defied all save the keenest scrutiny to discern where the mountain tops ended and the sky began. It was a day for indoors, for dreams, good books, and good fellows.

Here they all were. Mrs. Harrigan was deep in the intricate maze of the Amelina Arts of Bologna, while as the initiated know, is a wonderful lace. By one of the windows sat Nora, winding interminable yards of lace hemming from the willing. It ached digits of the Barone, who was speculating as to what his Neapolitan club friends would say could they see, by some trick of crystalazing, his present occupation. Celeste was at the piano, playing (pianissimo) snatches from the operas, while Abbott looked on his elbows propped upon his knees, his chin in his palms, and quizzed of occulte content in his eyes.

"Play the fourth ballade," urged Abbott.

Celeste was really a great artist. As an interpreter of Chopin she had no rival among women, and only one man was her equal. She had fire, tenderness, passion, strength; she had beyond all these, soul, which is worth more in true expression than the most marvelous technique. She had chosen Chopin for his brilliance, as some will choose Turner in preference to Corot, riots of color, barbaric and tingling. She was as great a genius in her way as Nora was in hers. There was something of the elan child in her spirit. Whenever she played to Abbott, there was a quality in the expression that awakened a wonderment in Nora's heart.

As Celeste began the adagio, Nora signified to the Barone to drop his work. She let her own hands fall. Harrigan gently closed his book, for in that rough kindly soul of his lay a mighty love of music. His himself was without expression of any sort, and somehow music seemed to stir the dim and not quite understandable longing for utterance. Mrs. Harrigan alone went on with her work; she could work and listen at the same time. After the magnificent finale, nothing in the room stirred but her needle.

"Bravo!" cried the Barone, breaking the spell.

"You never played that better," declared Nora.

"That's some!" Harrigan beat his hands together thunderously. "Great stuff, eh, Barone?"

The Barone raised his hands as if to express his utter inability to describe his sensations. His elation was that ascribed to those fortunate mortals whom the gods lifted to Olympus. At his feet lay the lace hemming, hopefully snarled.

"Father, father!" remonstrated Nora: "you will wake up all the old ladies who are having their siesta."

"Bah! I'll beat a doughnut their ears are glued to their doors. What! Somebody's at the portcullis! Probably the padre, come up for tea."

He was at the door instantly. He flung it open heartily. It was characteristic of the man to open everything widely, his heart, his mind, his hate or his affection.

"Come in, come in! Just in time for the matinée concert."

The padre was not alone. Courtland followed him in.

"We have been standing in the corridor for ten minutes," affirmed the padre, sending a winning smile around the room. "Mr. Courtland was going down to the bureau and sending up our cards. But I would not hear of such formality. I am a privileged person."

"Sure yes! Molly, ring for tea, and tell 'em to make it hot. How about a little peg, as the colonel says?"

The two men declined.

How easily and nonchalantly the man stood there by the door as Harrigan took his hat! Celeste was aquiver with excitement. She was thoroughly a woman; she wanted something to happen, dramatically, romantically.

But her want was a vain one. Nora hated scenes, and Courtland had the advantage of her in knowledge of this. Celeste remained at the piano, but Nora turned as if to move away.

"No, you must sing. That is what I came up for," insisted the padre. If there was any malice in the churchman, it was of a negative quality. But it was in his Latin blood that drama should appeal to him strongly, and here was an unusual phase in The Great Play. He had urged Courtland, much against the latter's will this day, to come up with him, simply that he might set a little scene such as this out on the little balcony. The moonshine was glorious. So dense was the earth blackness that the few lights twinkling here and there were more like fallen stars. Presently she heard a sound. It was her father, returning as silently as he could. She heard himumble among the knuckleknobs on the mantel, and then go away again. By and by she saw a spot of white light move hither and thither among the grape arbors. For five or six minutes she watched it dance. Suddenly all promised to be and study it from the vantage of the prompter. He knew that the principal theme of all great books, of all great dramas, was antagonism, antagonism between man and woman, though by a thousand other names has it been called. He had often said, in a spirit of rillery, that this antagonism was principally due to the fact that Eve had been constructed (and very well) out of a rib from Adam. Naturally she resented this, that she had not been fashioned independently, and would hold it against man until the true secret of the parable was made clear to her.

Nora saw that opposition would be useless. After all, it would be better to sing. She would not be compelled to look at this man she so despised. At the beginning she had intended to sing badly; but as the music proceeded, she sang as she had sung in weeks. To fill this man's soul with a hunger for the sound of her voice, to pour into his heart a fresh knowledge of what he had lost forever and forever!

Celeste turned from the keys after the final chords of "Morning Mood."

"Thank you!" said Nora.

"Do not stop," begged Courtland.

Nora looked directly into his eyes as she replied: "One's voice can not go on forever, and mine is not at all strong."

There was a knock at the door. The managing director handed Harrigan card.

"Herr Rosen," he read aloud. "Send him up. Some friend of yours, Nora; Herr Rosen. I told Mr. Jill to send him up."

The padre drew his feet under his cassock, a sign of perturbation; Courtland continued to unwind the snarl of lace dropped by the Barone; the Barone glanced fiercely at Nora, who smiled enigmatically.

Herr Rosen: There was no outward reason why the name should have set a chill on them all, turned them into expectant statues. Yet, all semblance of good fellowship was instantly gone.

Mrs. Harrigan smoothed out the wrinkles in her dress. From the others there had been little movement and no sound to speak of. Harrigan still waited by the door, seriously contemplating the bit of pasteboard in his hand.

Herr Rosen brushed past Harrigan uncomprehendingly, without pausing and went straight over to Nora, who was therupon seized by an uncontrollable spirit of devilment. She hated Herr Rosen, but she was going to be as pleasant and as engaging as she knew how to be. She did not care if he misinterpreted her mood. She welcomed him with a hand. He went on without relaxing the false smile, suddenly found emptiness in everything.

"Sing!" said Herr Rosen.

"I am too tired. Some other time."

He did not press her. Instead, he whispered in his own tongue: "You are the most adorable woman in the world!"

And Nora turned upon him a pair of eyes blank with astonishment. It was as though she had been asleep and he had rudely awakened her. His infatuation blinded him to the truth; he saw in the look a feminine desire to throw the others off the track as to the sentiment expressed in his whispered words.

The hour passed tolerably well. Herr Rosen then observed the time, rose and excused himself. He took the steps leading abruptly down the terrace to the carriage road. He had come by the other way, the rambling stone stairs which began at the porter's lodge, back of the villa.

"Padre," whispered Courtland, "I am going. Do not follow. I shall explain to you when we meet again."

The padre signified that he understood. Harrigan protested vigorously, but smiling and shaking his head, Courtland went away.

Nora ran to the window. She could see Herr Rosen striding along, down the winding road, his head in the air. Presently, from behind a cluster of mulberries, the figure of another man came into view. He was going at a pace.

She had seen him before.

What She Saw Was a Beautiful Uncut Emerald.

white string and one brown one. It's enough to drive a woman mad. What in heaven's name made you come?"

Perhaps it was the after effect of a good dinner, that dwindling away of pleasant emotions; perhaps it was the very triviality of the offense for which he was thus suddenly arraigned; at any rate, he lost his temper, and he was rather formidable when he started.

"Damn it, Molly. I wasn't, isn't, but Courtland asked me to go with him, and I never thought of my shoes. You are always finding fault with me these days. I don't drink, I don't gamble. I don't run around after other women. I never did. But since you've got this social bug in your bonnet, you keep me on hooks all the while. Nobody noticed the shoe strings; and they would have looked upon it as a joke if they had. After all, I'm the boss of this ranch. If I want to wear a white string and a black one, I'll do it. Here!" He caught up a book on social usages and threw it out of the window. "Don't ever shove a thing like that under my nose again. If you do, I'll hike back to Little old Now York and start the gym again."

He rammed one of the colonel's perfects (which he had been saving for the morrow) between his teeth, and stalked into the garden.

Nora was heartless enough to laugh.

"He hasn't talked like that to me in years!" Mrs. Harrigan did not know what to do—follow him or weep. She took the middle course, and went to bed.

Nora turned out the lights and sat out on the little balcony. The moonshine was glorious. So dense was the earth blackness that the few lights twinkling here and there were more like fallen stars. Presently she heard a sound. It was her father, returning as silently as he could. She heard himumble among the knuckleknobs on the mantel, and then go away again. By and by she saw a spot of white light move hither and thither among the grape arbors. For five or six minutes she watched it dance. Suddenly all the Padre Was Not Alone; Courtland Followed Him.

To Mrs. Harrigan, who colored pleasantly. He was then introduced, and he acknowledged each introduction with a careless nod. He was there to see Nora, and he did not propose to put himself to any inconvenience on account of the others.

Herr Rosen instantly usurped the chair next to Nora, who began to pour the tea. He had come up from the village prepared for a disagreeable half hour. Instead of being greeted with icy glances from stormy eyes, he encountered such smiles as this adorable creature had never before bestowed upon him. He was in the clouds. That night at Cadonabbia had apparently knocked the bottom out of his dream. Women were riddles which only they themselves could solve for others. For this one woman he was perfectly ready to throw everything aside. A man lived but once; and he was a fool who would hold to himself in preference to such happiness as he thought he saw opening out before him. Nora saw, but she did not care. That in order to reach another she was practising infinite cruelty on this man (whose one fault lay in that he loved her) did not appeal to her pity. But her arrow flew wide of the target, at least, there appeared no result to her archery in malice. Not once had the intended victim looked over to where she sat. And yet she knew that he must be watching; he could not possibly avoid it and be human. And when he finally came forward to take his cup, she leaned toward him.

"You take two lumps?" she asked sweetly. It was only a chance shot, but she hit on the truth.

"And you remember?" excitedly.

"One lump for mine, please," said Courtland, smiling.

She picked up a cube of sugar and dropped it into his cup. She had the air of one wishing it were poison. The recipient of this good will, with perfect understanding, returned to the divan, where the padre and Harrigan were gravely toasting each other with benedictine.

Nora made no mistake with either Abbott's cup or the Barone's; but the padre, his hat settled at an angle that permitted the rain to beat squarely into his face. The next turn in the road shut them both from sight. But Nora did not stir.

Herr Rosen stopped and turned.

"You called?"

"Yon," Courtland had caught up with him just as Herr Rosen was about to open the gates. "Just a moment, Herr Rosen," with a hand upon the door of Miss Harrigan's limousine.

"It was you?" scowling.

"I apologize for that. Tomorrow morning you will leave Bellaggio for Varena. Somewhere between nine and ten the first train leaves for Milan."

There was studied insolence in the tone and the gestures which accompanied them.

and the Barone.

"Vanessa! Milan!"

"Exactly. You speak English as naturally and fluently as if you were born to the tongue. Thus, you will leave for Milan. What becomes of you after that is of no consequence to me. Am I making myself clear?"

"Verdampf! Do I believe my ears?" furiously. "Are you telling me to leave Bellaggio tomorrow morning?"

"As directly as I can."

Herr Rosen's face became as red as his name. He was a brave young man, but there was danger of an active kind in the blue eyes boring into his own. If it came to a physical contest, he realized that he would get the worst of it. He put his hand to his throat; his very impotence was choking him.

"Your Highness . . ."

"Highness!" Herr Rosen stepped back.

"Yes. Your Highness will readily see the wisdom of my concern for your hasty departure when I add that I know all about the little house in Versailles, that my knowledge is shared by the chief of the Parisian police and the minister of war. If you annoy Miss Harrigan with your equivocal attentions . . ."

"Gott! This is too much!"

"Wait! I am stranger than you are. Do not make me force you to hear me to the end. You have no idea about this intrigue like a blackguard, and that I know not to be the case."

PLAN MANGANESE MANUFACTURE FOR THE OPEN MARKET

Dunbar Furnace is Part of Deal to Open American Trade.

FOREIGNERS NOW IN CONTROL

Carnegie Steel Company Only Concern Which Manufactures Manganese in U. S., and It Rarely Sells to Independents, to be $12,000,000 Corporation.

One of the most important moves in some years affecting the iron and steel trade vessels in the Pittsburgh district has been developed through the organization of the Carnegie Manganese Mining Co. of Pittsburgh, with George A. Crotzer, president, and a nominal capital, but which it is intended to increase shortly to $12,000,000, providing plans laid out are successful.

The new corporation proposes to take the first practical step toward producing ferro manganese in America for America. Blast furnaces and open works have been proposed at the head of Lake Superior near Duluth, Minnesota, in which the Carnegie Mine Mill Iron & Steel Company and also of a good iron ore deposit held under the name of the Duluth Iron Company. In these, it is expected to secure manganese ore and iron ore.

A furnace equipment is intended, by securing the consent of the creditors of the old Dunbar Furnace Company, to have the control of the Dunbar furnace has been in the hands of receivers for some years and has been run only intermittently owing to its financial condition.

In Pittsburgh the plan of the company was arousing keen interest if it is formed and proceeds with its plan. It will be the first company to manufacture manganese for the open market in America. The Carnegie Steel Company has been a producer of manganese from iron ore since 1902. The Steel Corporation furnaces and mills for some years but has never done much with the open market frequently having to purchase ferro manganese from abroad to supplement its own supply. In extremely dull times it has sold manganese in small lots. All other manganese has come from Europe, Canada and Australia and until the new enterprise starts, has taken effect importations of manganese were made with a stiff duty on it. It is now free of duty.

That the foreign makers are aware to the possibilities of American competition for the American market is shown by the sudden drop in the price of both English and German manganese from around $12 a ton at the beginning before the American company was formed. It is said foreign interests are preparing to make a fight for the retention of the American market.

Edward E. Marshall is president of the American Manganese Manufacturing Company and L. R. Wister of Philadelphia, is an active spirit in the new enterprise. It is proposed to have representatives of the Cuyuna-Duluth Iron Company and the Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Iron Company on the board of the new company. The as-

AMERICAN MINES IN THE LEAD

Largest Importers are France, Canada and Austria-Hungary. According to Related Estimates of the British Board of Trade for Year of 1912.

Related but interesting figures published by the British Board of Trade shows that the principal producing countries and the output of each in 1912 were as follows:

	Long tons
United States	177,202,000
United Kingdom	120,012,000
Germany	17,065,000
France	17,712,000
Belgium	15,900,000
Other	60,100,000

About 91,000,000 tons, therefore or nearly five sixths of the total for the world were produced in the United States, the United Kingdom and Germany. Provisional figures for 1913, show an increase of nearly 10,000,000 tons in the United States and of about 11,000,000 tons in Germany.

The total coal production in the United Kingdom, according to the total population, the output in 1912 is the highest in the United Kingdom, averaging 5.7 tons per head as compared with 5.0 tons in the United States, 3.0 tons in Belgium, 2.6 tons in Germany and 1.0 tons in France. Both as regards the total production and the average output per head in the United Kingdom, the figures for 1912 were lower than those for 1911, owing to the effects of the national strike of coal miners in the United States, Germany and France, however the figures were considerably higher than those recorded in any previous year.

The total coal production of the British Empire in 1912 was nearly 310,000,000 tons. The average value of the coal in the pits mouth varied according to different countries being as low as 15 cents per ton in Belgium and as high as 175 cents in France. In the United Kingdom the average value was 88 cents an acre, which in 31 cents was exceeded only in 1909 and 1910. In Germany the average value was 108 cents in France 128 cents. The total number of persons engaged in the industry was the greatest in the United Kingdom where the number employed in 1912 was nearly 1,000,000 of which 862,000 were employed below ground.

The countries importing most largely were France (21,000,000 tons), Canada (10,000,000 tons) and Australia (18,500,000 tons).

TOMORROW—THURSDAY

Let's roll up our sleeves, attack dirt vigorously and make Connellsville clean, safe and a healthful place to live in.

Wright-Metzler Company, interested to the core in a clean Connellsville, joins with its friends in endeavoring to stamp out the dull, dirty, unwholesome places in the city.

Filth Breeds Disease; Rubbish May Cause Serious Fires; Untidy Premises Lower Property Values and Uncleanly Spots Encourage Carelessness.

Let us clean up and keep clean. By burning our rubbish, carting away dirt and filth, blotting out pools and puddles and otherwise making sanitary every speck of ground that each of us is responsible for.

CONNELLSVILLE IS CERTAIN TO HAVE LESS SICKNESS THIS SUMMER

HEALTH fits us to accomplish things. The Panama Canal could not have been built if the zone had not first been made healthful; Havana, Manila, various European cities, New Orleans other Southern communities, once were plague spots. Cleanliness transformed them into prosperous, beautiful cities. nearer home, the results of cleanliness can be seen in the model coke towns.

While Connellsville does not have to fortify against plagues in the sense that Panama, Havana, New Orleans and the other cities did, please understand that sickness or death which could be prevented is more disastrous than periodical epidemics.

Disease germs bred by dirt and carried by house flies are the cause, physicians tell us, of typhoid fever, tuberculosis, scarlet fever and other maladies being transmitted.

If we remove the cause, we have a better chance to resist disease. If we are cleanly, in person and surroundings, the cause must give way to better things—to healthful spots where filth and rubbish is now in possession.

So, this "Clean Up Connellsville" agitation has back of it a deeper purpose than the mere changing of old clothes for new. It's true meaning is.
